

DOCTORS PRESCRIPTION FAILED— THE GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY PROVES ITS MERIT

It gives me great pleasure to say a good word for Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root because it has cured me of a severe case of Kidney Trouble. I had suffered for some five years with this trouble, and more especially for the first three months of 1909.

Physicians prescribed for me, but without much success, and any relief obtained was only temporary. I had severe pains in my back and at no time was I free of pain. When I stooped down it was with some difficulty that I could straighten my body again. I could not lift any weight of consequence without great pain. I would be compelled to arise and give the bladder relief. A friend of mine advised me to take Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, whereupon I wrote to Dr. Kilmer for a sample bottle which so benefited me that I was led to believe it would be a great help to me. Accordingly I purchased two bottles of Swamp-Root from Mr. A. P. Perry, my Druggist, and the effect has been truly marvelous.

I feel like a new man and have every reason to believe that I am cured, and that no other medicine could have accomplished so much. Now I can raise a heavy load, can bend my back over my desk all day, and feel none the worse for it. In view of the foregoing facts, I sincerely trust that this testimonial may reach some of those who are suffering after the manner before described and that it may convince them that the merit of this great medicine should be given a fair trial in their case.

Very truly yours,

Classification.
"Sir," said a little blustering man to a religious opponent; "I say, sir, do you know to what sect I belong?"
"Well, I don't exactly know," was the answer; "but to judge by your make, shape, and size, I should say you belonged to a class called the insect."

An Individualist.
The reason for the individual drinking cup had been explained again and again to the children and they had become sturdy supporters of the idea. So it was not surprising to hear Henry calling: "Ma, ma! Melville's got my individual apple!"

Grouch Still With Him.
When Brown died he left an old friend living, by the name of Jones, who always had a grouch. After Brown had been in heaven some time, he met Jones just coming through the gate, and as the newcomer did not look as happy and contented as he should, Brown asked him what was the matter. "Well," Jones said, "I got my feet wet coming across the river Styx and caught a nasty cold, broke my left wing and have to carry it in a sling, and my halo don't fit worth a darn."

Preventing a Disturbance.
Colonel Scotchman was weary. He had had a very arduous day retreating from the enemy, and he wished to recoup his strength in order that he might retreat still further on the morrow.

"MacPherson," he said to his new servant, "I'm going to snatch forty winks' sleep. Stay in my tent and see that I'm not disturbed."

Mac saluted. Five minutes later the snoring of Colonel Scotchman were cut short by the loud report of a gun.

"Great Scott!" cried the colonel. "Are the enemy upon us?"

"No, dinna fret," replied Mac, inserting his head reassuringly through the tent flap. "It was only a wee mouse. But as I thought he might wake you up I shot him."—Answers.

COLD FRAMES AND HOT BEDS

Many Vegetables Are Started Early by Their Use—Horse Manure Is Preferred in Making.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Cabbage, lettuce, cauliflower, tomatoes, peppers, egg plant, radishes and such vegetables are usually started in hot-beds. Many gardeners place a few inches of good soil directly on the manure (horse manure preferred), depositing the seed in the soil. Shallow boxes in which canned tomatoes and soap have been shipped are convenient to use, ripping off the bottoms.

The hot bed should be two feet deep, six feet wide, and long enough to accommodate the length of sash you are using. Let bed slope toward the south.

The frame covered with glass is so placed that the warmth of the manure will warm the four inches of soil inside the frame, causing the seeds to sprout and grow. In about four weeks the seedlings will be ready to transplant.

Where the sash is 3x6 feet in size cross supports about three feet apart should be placed. Fresh horse manure containing litter is the best for the pit. Place this in the pit about two weeks before the seed is sown. Cover the manure with good rich soil. The soil should be well packed on the manure.

When the manure is thoroughly heated, which will take several days, fork it over level and tramp firmly down; fill to within about six inches to the top of the frames. Now place the sash on the frame and plunge a thermometer into the manure. When the thermometer registers 95 degrees it is safe to sow the seed. Cypress or cedar frames are much better than pine.

Cold frames simply consist of a wooden frame, covered with glass and sash, placed over good garden soil without artificial heat beneath it.

LOST HER CHANTICLER HAT

Young Lady From New York City Loses Her New Bonnet In Peculiar Manner on Jersey Farm.

While visiting an uncle, a farmer in New Jersey, a young lady from New York city had an experience which caused hysterics. Sauntering along the lane leading to church one bright Sunday morning, taking pardonable pride in her huge chanticler hat, a big chicken hawk spied it and after circling around the horizon once or twice, made a dive for it. His claws were firmly fastened in the hat, and in spite of the girl's screams and her efforts to drive him away, he succeeded in tearing it loose from its fastenings of hatpins, and when last seen was sailing away across the river.

Desirable Young Men.

The kind of young men wanted on the farms are those that are not ashamed of the work, who believe there is no better business than farming, who are willing to take right hold and do everything that comes to them, and do it all the very best they can. Young men are wanted who will take the time to learn what scientific, up-to-date farming is, and who love live stock.

Potato Speculators.

Too many farmers like to speculate in potatoes or some other crop, and not be tied to cows, but you may go into any community, and you will find the up-to-date dairymen the men who can pay their bills.

Full Crop of Rape.

When barnyard manure is plentiful dress the land selected for rape heavily with it, and if you are particularly desirous of getting a full crop, sow a little commercial nitrogenous fertilizer with the seed.

TREATING FOR HESSIAN FLY

Amount of Damage Will Depend on Weather, Fertility of Soil and Resisting Power of Plant.

A Missouri farmer writes Wallace's Farmer for advice regarding a field of wheat infested with Hessian fly maggots. His query and the reply given follow:

"I have twelve acres of wheat that is full of the Hessian fly. I would like to know if weather conditions will have anything to do with the hatching of these flies? There are eggs in almost every plant. In case there is no chance of a wheat crop, I would like to sow this ground to oats and clover. This wheat is looking fine now, and we are seldom if ever troubled with the fly here."

If examination of the winter wheat fields shows that nearly every plant is infested with little brown objects resembling flaxseed, there is probability of the field being badly damaged in the spring. Our correspondent has mistakenly called these brown objects eggs. They are not eggs, but are forms into which the maggots that did damage last fall have developed. These flaxseeds, as they are called, will do no more damage themselves, but will develop in the spring into the small black flies, that will lay more eggs on the wheat, which, in turn, will develop into maggots and burrow into the straw. The development of the flaxseed into flies is hindered by hot, dry weather. Fields which are badly infested with flaxseed this winter will produce a reduced yield, due to the damage to the straw of the next generation of Hessian fly maggots. The amount of this damage will depend on the weather, the fertility of the soil, and the resisting power of the particular variety of wheat.

We cannot give definite advice as to whether badly infested fields should be plowed up this spring. If the plants were not badly damaged by the maggots last fall, and came through the winter in good shape, we would be inclined to let the field remain in wheat. Otherwise, we would disk as early in the spring as possible and seed to any crop other than wheat. Barley and rye are slightly troubled by the fly, but oats seems to be free.

Plant New Vegetables.

In planning your garden this summer, why not include some of the new vegetables that are coming into use in the cities, but are little known in the country. Brussels sprouts, for instance, is a vegetable for which city folks demand more than can be supplied.

Farm Help.

Married men should be employed by the year and furnished with a house. This would help to solve the farm-labor problem.

FARM NOTES

Disking kills many weeds. There are various kinds of dodder. Gravelly land will not hold manure. Any good corn soil is good for sorghum.

Oats and field peas should be sown as early in the spring as possible. Sow clean, new crop of clover seed; old seed will not germinate freely.

As soon as the weather turns mild the canker worms ascend the tree. An acre of good sorghum should produce three to five tons of fair hay.

The value of a good tomato is due to the fact that it has few seeds. There are two points in favor of the grain drill that are many times overlooked.

In buying a farm, select good land, even if you cannot afford to buy more than 50 acres.

Success with the garden depends to a great extent upon the quality of the seeds that are used.

Sorghum appreciates warm weather even more than corn, and should be sown a week or two later.

A very large acreage of corn land will be plowed this spring and a seed bed prepared for another corn crop.

The clover stubble and roots contain nitrogen, part of which is obtained from the air and part from the soil.

Young clover should never be pastured, as the tramping of the cattle will compact the soil so hard as to kill out most of the plant.

Successful cranberry culture necessitates such a situation and control of the water supply that the entire bog may be easily and quickly flooded.

A little nitrate of soda is a good thing to hurry along the growth of early vegetables, and especially in gardens that are not well manured.

Strips of clover, rape, cabbage, etc., may be sown in the orchard for the fowls to pick at, and later crimson clover and rye may be sown for a winter cover crop.

WAS THE FIRST SUFFRAGETTE

Mary Wollstonecraft Struggled for Independence for Women in the Year 1759.

London.—Mary Wollstonecraft is admittedly the great pioneer of the woman movement. By her vigor and her vehemence, by her heart-whole earnestness and her passionate sympathies, she may lay claim to the title of the first suffragette. Before her time there had been a few tentative tracts on female education, "Serious Proposals" that amounted to very little. The "Vindication of the Rights of Women" sprang, like Minerva, glittering and full-armed, with tremendous dazzle and shock upon the smug respectability of that most conventional of all centuries—the eighteenth.

Mary Wollstonecraft.

The book still stands, brilliant and unassailable, and few on the same subject can take their place beside it for sheer logic and insight. The "Vindication" was born out of suffering and bitter experience. Mrs. Brown says in "Aurora Leigh" that life blood is necessary to the making of a great book, and, though the "Vindication" holds its importance as a piece of reasoning, yet it is Mary's very life blood that gives its arguments vitality. Born in 1759, her pity—her "darling passion," as she calls it, was first claimed by her own mother and the very dogs of the household, subjected to the caprice of a brutal father. Then her difficult struggles against poverty, her pitiful attempts to earn a living by keeping school, taught her something of the harshness of the outside world. "Independence," she writes in her dedication to the "Vindication," "Independence I have long considered as the grand blessing of life, the basis of every virtue, and independence I will ever secure by contracting my wants, though I were to live on a barren heath." How modern it all sounds!

BUDDHA HEWN IN A CLIFF

Crude Testimony to Religious Fervor of Disciples Seen at Kiatang, China.

Kiatang, China.—Gautama, the alleged founder of Buddhism, was born 624 B. C., the son of Suddhodana, king of Kapilavastu, in the north of India. The story of his life is a tissue of monstrous fables, but it is generally believed that there is a historical basis to the story. In early life he was of ascetic habits, but, tempted by his father, he abandoned himself to every pleasure for a time. His singular wisdom (which like his other marvelous gifts was the fruit of merits gained in previous states of existence) led him to renounce the world and after years of profound study, severe bodily maceration and long contemplation, he discovered the supreme truth that to return to the ignorance and state of non-sentient repose from whence man sprang is the highest possible good and the final reward of the just and pure. After this discovery he was made a Buddha and after a time passed into Nirvana, or unconsciousness, having died at Kusinagara in 543 B. C.

A crude testimony to the religious fervor of his disciples is a strange cliff-Buddha located at Kiatang, China. The full figure is about 150 feet in height and the feet are washed by a foaming mountain torrent. It was to guard against the danger of the rapids that the figure was cut in the cliff-side by the lifelong labor of a single priest. The rock is somewhat soft and there is much earth in the crevices. This has been ingeniously utilized for a monstrous growth of hair, eyebrows and mustache, which adds considerably to the appearance.

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM.

The cause of rheumatism is excess uric acid in the blood. To cure rheumatism this acid must be expelled from the system. Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. Rubbing with oils and liniments may ease the pain, but they will no more cure rheumatism than paint will change the fiber of rotten wood.

Cure Rheumatism To Stay Cured. Science has discovered a perfect and complete cure called Rheumacide. Tested in hundreds of cases, it has effected marvelous cures. Rheumacide removes the cause, gets at the joints from the inside, sweeps the poisons out of the system, tones up the stomach, regulates the bowels and kidneys. Sold by druggists at 50c. and $1.00. The tablet form lists at 25c. and 50c., by mail. Booklet free. Robbitt Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md. Get At The Joints From The Inside.
